Meet Our Speaker - Greg Mertz

We welcome back Greg Mertz, who serves as the supervisory historian at Fredericksburg and Spotsylvania National Military Park. He has been our guide on several of our field trips to eastern battlefields and has spoken at our meetings before as well. Greg Mertz was born and raised near St. Louis, Missouri. He was active in Boy Scouts, earning the rank of Eagle Scout. His interest in the Civil War began and grew out of annual hiking and camping trips the scout troop made to the Shiloh, Tennessee battlefield every spring. He holds a bachelor's degree from the University of Missouri and a master's from Shippensburg University in Pennsylvania. His 37-year career with the National Park Service began with four years at Gettysburg National Military Park and Eisenhower National Historic Site followed by 33 years at Fredericksburg. He has written four feature articles for Blue and Gray Magazine on the Battles of the Wilderness and Spotsylvania Court House and has an upcoming book in the Emerging Civil War Series titled Attack at Daylight and Whip Them: The Battle of Shiloh, April 6-7, 1862.

Greg was our guide on our Spring Field Trip in 2009 where we toured the Campaign and battle of Chancellorsville.

"Gordon's Flank Attack: Lost Opportunity in the Wilderness"

The final attack during the May 5-6, 1864 Battle of the Wilderness, was not simply a small portion of the first showdown between Robert E. Lee and Ulysses S. Grant. For Confederate General John B. Gordon, of whom the attack is named, the dusk attack was a lost opportunity - and one of several such chances blown by the Confederates that he observed during the course of the war. Gordon felt that the situation in the Wilderness was similar to a missed opportunity he had experienced at Gettysburg, as well as a pair of other prime chances the Confederates had during subsequent battles later in 1864. In addition to observing similarities among the several lost opportunities, Gordon also noticed parallels in the decision-making process for the attacks that failed to accomplish all that Gordon felt the Confederates could have achieved. Some combination of Generals Gordon, Richard S. Ewell and Jubal A. Early were involved in the discussions regarding lost opportunities, and Gordon blamed these superiors for failing to make attacks that did not reach their potential. We will examine how Gordon's Flank Attack in the Wilderness tells us about more than just a sliver of the battle, but illuminates our understanding of the inner workings of a key portion of the Army of Northern Virginia.

The Seventh Annual Bourbon and BBQ June 23

We are pleased to announce that the seventh annual Bourbon and BBQ will be held on June 23rd on the banks of the Ohio River at the lovely home of our President, Art Boerner. Our theme this year is Irish whiskey. Our tasting will be conducted by whiskey expert Chris Zaborowski. Bourbon historian Mike Veach will once again serve as our master of ceremonies. We will once again feature the fabulous BBQ ribs of Art Boerner and the smoked pull pork of Marc Oca along with many side dishes and desserts!

We will taste a bourbon then compare this with various Irish whiskeys. When the Irish arrived in America, they had no idea what bourbon whiskey was so it was a new experience for them. We will learn about the history of Irish whiskey and about the very large Irish whiskey industry and products that are available today.

Chris Zaborowski, is a 30+ year veteran of the beverage alcohol business and currently owner of Westport Whiskey & Wine, in Louisville, KY. He was one of the first recognized instructors by the Society for Wine Educators and more recently certified an Executive Bourbon Steward by the Stave and Thief Society. He has a firm belief that the best way to learn about beverage alcohol is to taste. No matter if it was a wine course or a whiskey class, he always combines a tasting with the presented material.

This event always sells out and you need to get your paid reservation in early. The cost is $50 for members and $60 for non-members. After May 12, all tickets are $60. The only way to reserve your place is to mail your check made out to the LCWRT to Louisville Civil War Round Table, 9462 Brownsboro Road- #142, Louisville, KY., 40241 or you can pay at the meetings.
